None Claims Body
Of Sarah Cowen

Cowen one time president of the B. & O. railroad which was found in a hotel room yesterday remained unclaimed in the morgue today. Miss Cowen died, the medical examiners officer reported of alcoholism and drug poisoning.

Police records show that the young woman after being dismised in 1919 from a post graduate hospital where she had been a probationary nurse was committed to Blackwell's Island as a drug addict. Nothing further had been heard of her since her discharge from Blackwell's as cured.

Reports from Baltimore said she had dropped out of social life of that city several years ago. She had been known in Baltimore as one of the most beautiful debutantes of the season in which she made her debut and in 1909 eloped with Charles Monson, Jr., of New Haven, Conn. She later divorced Monson.
